Feltner and Clark have engaged Marshall McCornick and A. Moore, Jr., of Berryville, to defend them, and the grand jury will take up the case to-morrow. The books of Treasurer McCann, of the Shenandoah Valley Agricultural Society, show that there was a large increase in attendance at the society's forty-first annual exhibition here last week—the largest since the days of the late Charles Broadway Rouss, the blind New York millionaire merchant, whose annual visits to the fair always draw enormous crowds, eager to eat his free dinners and scramble for the silver coins he threw away by the landful. This year the directors refused to issue complimentary tickets promiscuously, and many people who had been accustomed to enjoying free privileges had to pay or remain away.

In a written opinion, given a few days ago, Judge T. W. Harrison, of the Circuit Court of Frederick county, soundly flays both Mrs. Nora Virginia Ornorff and her husband, E. Summers Orndorff, a local school teacher and poet, who was sued for divorce. In dismissing the bill the court, among other things, says: "Neither seeins to have sufficiently considered the duty seach owed to the other upon entering into marriage. He was guilty of great misconduct, and his pleasantry, too, in kicking his wife on one occasion and in bringing criminal charges against her on another, takes a microscopic power of vision into humor to appreciate. On the other hand, the wife has shown little disposition to please or accommodate herself to the wishes of her husband, She has been too ready to abandon her home, when a stronger sense of duty should have held her. She owed him love and obedience and tolerance, and I cannot say that she has measured up to this. The home is still open to her, and if she returns to it and the doors are closed upon her, then the court will grant her relief." Mrs. Orndorff action and her husband's coossbill were dismissed with costs against the husband. ill were disn he husband.

DAILY PUZZLES EXPERT WITH LASSO,

Captain Hugh C. Braxton, father of the general manager plan at Staunton, made an address before the Common Council of Winchester a few nights since, telling how the system worked in Staunton and of the money that is supposed to be sayed in the course of a year by combining all the various departments under one head. At the conclusion of his address an ordinance was introduced providing for the election of a general manager for Winchester, but it is not known when final action will be taken in the matter. There is some opposition to the plan, while many are in favor of it.

The will of Arthur Brashare Worthington, who died in Johannesburg. South Africa, last April, has been received from the court officials in that country and admitted to record. Mr. Worthington leaves his entire estate to his sister, Miss Mary Worthington, of Winchester. He went from this city to South Africa in 1898 with several of his brothers and engaged extensively in the ice, cold storage and tensively in the ice, cold storage and laundry enterprises.

A most unusual transaction took place here several days ago, when Robert Brooks, a colored farmer living at White Post, Clarke county, made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. Brooks is said to be one of the very few colored residents of that section who have anything to assign. His liabilities amount to between $4,500 and $5,000, and his assets consist of one-third interest in a tween $4,500 and $5,000, and his absets consist of one-third interest in a Clarke county farm of 134 acres and a house and lot at White Post. Trustees have taken charge of the property. have taken charge of the property.

Miss Ollie Toppin, of Broadway, Va., was the heroine the other evening in a thrilling rescue of Ernest Rodeffer, of that place, who fell while crossing the Southern Railway track to join her on the other side. A freight train was backing, and Rodeffer, badly stunned by the fall, was unaple to get up. Just as the wheels of a car cut off part of Rodeffer's coat Miss Toppin pulled him out of danger. The young couple have been good friends for some time past, but their frienship has become much stronger since Miss Toppin saved Ernest's life.

Benjamin B. Cockley, a wealthy farmer living at Shippensburg, Pa., and ars. Hannah E. Elcenhouser, an attractive widow of Carlisle, Pa., wished to be married quietly the other day, and they came to Winchester and had the knot tied by Rev. J. F. Snyder, of the United Brethren Church, of Shippensburg, who was brought along for that purpose. The news of the wedding leaked out, however, and when the bride and groom went to their future home at Shippensburg they were given a rousing reception by friends and neighbors.
